

Judith's list

- To dare to go camping on my own for two or three days
- To make a series of oil paintings totally for myself without worrying what anybody else thinks of them or what I'm going to do with them (incredibly hard).
- Over the next few months to listen to all my 150 or so gramophone records that I started collecting as a teenager and some of which I've not listened to since! And after listening to each record to write down what I think of them now and memories of what they meant to me when I got them.
- To organise regular (monthly or so) salon evenings for women friends old and new to share food and thoughts from pre-planned possible topics (!)...
- To figure out travelling alone with a purpose so not lonely.....
